

Confidential Enquiry into Maternal and Child Health

Improving the health of mothers, babies and children

Diabetes and pregnancy: Are we providing the best care?

Findings of a national enquiry

Monday 26th February 2007
Sheffield United Stadium, Sheffield

Tuesday 27th February 2007
Bescot Stadium, Birmingham

Thursday 1st March 2007
The Barbican, London

Who should attend?

All primary and secondary care clinicians and managers involved in providing services and clinical care for women of childbearing age with diabetes, and their babies.

- General practitioners and other primary care professionals
- Diabetologists and diabetes specialist nurses
- Midwives and obstetricians
- Neonatal nurses and neonatologists
- Managers
- Public health doctors

Why attend?

- Hear key findings of the national CEMACH enquiry into diabetes and pregnancy, including:
  - Social and lifestyle issues
  - Clinical care
  - Clinical governance
  - A comparison of type 1 and type 2 diabetes
- Listen to an update on recent research initiatives in diabetes and pregnancy
- Discuss progress on implementation of the Diabetes National Service Framework
- Hear about other European centres' experience of diabetes and pregnancy

Overview

This conference will launch the final report of the CEMACH national diabetes programme for England, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Key aspects that CEMACH has previously highlighted are the continuing increased risk of stillbirth, perinatal mortality and congenital anomaly for babies of women with diabetes, the increasing contribution of type 2 diabetes to diabetic pregnancy and its relationship to ethnicity and deprivation, women's poor preparation for pregnancy, patchy provision of preconception services and inappropriate routine separation of mother and baby after delivery. The new report includes an overall concern that services as currently organised place too little emphasis on care prior to pregnancy. There are also specific concerns about the impact of a number of demographic, social and clinical care factors on adverse pregnancy outcomes. There are a number of key recommendations for clinicians and policy makers within the NHS.

The conference will also include updates on service development and research initiatives and will provide the opportunity for discussion, networking and exchange of ideas.
